Catalogue

The catalogue contains all the important information to do with the event.

As an exhibitor you are included in the alphabetical index with your company details and stand number. You will also be found under the product groups you have booked.

The catalogue helps people to prepare for their visit to the fair and they like to use it subsequently as a follow-up – a kind of „fair to go“.

Website

Each event has its own user-friendly website. The full-text search is intelligent and the search terms can be chosen at will.

This means the visitors are able to get comprehensive information on the event, the exhibitors and what they are offering.

Your company and product information and the basic details from the catalogue can be retrieved here at the click of a mouse button.

Navigator App

When they use the Navigator App people visiting the fair and exhibitors can get an instant view of the whole site and their own position in the hall during the event.

Synchronization of bookmarks?
Exhibitor and product search? News section with current press releases and social media news from Twitter?

There's nothing this app can't do. But the main thing is that visitors can use it to locate you while they are moving around.

Interactive Ground Plan

Visitors can find the interactive Ground Plan both online and in the Navigator App – and this also means that they get your exact position as an exhibitor at all times and from any location.

The user interface is interactive and animated: just click on the stand and you will instantly get the exhibitor profile and other important information.

Information points

At the many information points on the site visitors can learn where you, as an exhibitor, are located, what your products are and what is happening on your stand.

The trade fair hosts are supported by the visitor information system which is updated continuously throughout an event.

Add-Ons?

Wouldn't it be nice if it was even easier for visitors to find you? Ask about the supplementary services, Add-Ons and the banner advertising facility at Messe Frankfurt.
